History:

Clara Wells was a devoted student of Tobias Matthay in the 1930s. In 1971, she was memorialized by her husband, the late Samuel Masland, who dedicated funds in her name to offer scholarships promoting knowledge of Matthay principles. Since 2015, the competition has been structured to offer two fellowships for different age categories, which underwrite residencies at AMAP Festivals. The purpose of these fellowships is to enable personalized exposure to the teachings of Tobias Matthay and to our organization.

Writing Requirement

The teaching and playing principles of Tobias Matthay are of paramount importance to the American Matthay Association for Piano. These principles are found in succinct form especially in three texts written in the years 1915-1930: Musical Interpretation; The Nine Steps to Finger Individualization; and The Visible and Invisible in Pianoforte Technique. A Kindle edition of the latter book is available via Amazon. While we encourage study of all this material, for this competition applicants are required only to respond to any two of these sayings from the “Daily Maxims” and “Final Precepts” at the end of The Visible and Invisible. Simply explain what your chosen two sayings mean to you.

1. “What you have to learn is to intend every note you play—an intentional sound and an intentional time—and an intentional duration.”
2. “Mean the moment of each sound, and see that you get it; mean the kind of sound for each note, and see that you get it.”
3. “ First learn to use Arm-weight so that you can sing. After that, learn to keep the arm ‘off’—so that you can run.”
4. “ Arm off in between the sounding of all notes, and during all light running passages.”
